

College Readiness

Number of College Readiness Benchmarks Attained

Percent of ACT-tested Graduates by Number of ACT College Readiness Benchmarks Attained, 2010

About 71% of all ACT-tested 2010 high school graduates met at least one of the four College Readiness Benchmarks in English, Mathematics, Reading, or Science.

Approximately 28% of all graduates met no College Readiness Benchmarks, while 47% met between 1 and 3 Benchmarks. Twenty-four percent of all 2010 ACT-tested high school graduates met all four College Readiness Benchmarks, meaning that less than 1 in 4 were academically ready for college coursework in all four subject areas.

Graph reads: In 2010, 24% of ACT-tested high school graduates met all four College Readiness Benchmarks, 15% met 3 Benchmarks, 17% met 2 Benchmarks, 15% met 1 Benchmark, and 28% met none of the Benchmarks.

Note: Percentages may not sum to 100% due to rounding.